SOLEMNITY OF PENTECOST SUNDAY: Comprehension of speech is pretty much dependent on two people: the speaker and the listener. Even if the two speak a common language, the listener may have difficulty understanding if the speaker has a heavy accent. This dynamic comes into play in Luke’s account of Pentecost. Filled with the Holy Spirit, the disciples were able to speak in different tongues. This attracted people from over a dozen regions, each one able to hear them “speaking in (their) own tongues of the mighty acts of God” (Acts 2:11). In order to comprehend what they were hearing, they must have overcome the difficulty of understanding someone speaking their own language with a foreign accent. After all, even with the disciples inside a house the crowd recognized their voices as Galilean, which we know was a distinctive accent because it had given Peter away when he denied knowing Jesus. Yet they were still able to comprehend the meaning of their words. Saint Paul’s letter to the Corinthians lists some examples of the different gifts the Holy Spirit brings, including both “varieties of tongues” and “interpretation of tongues” (1 Corinthians 12:10). Speaker and listener are each blessed by the Spirit. May the Holy Spirit bring us insight and comprehension as we listen to the word of God.

How does the Holy Spirit help you to hear, understand and express God’s word?
